SHIRDENIA BRYANT, et al.,	:	Case No. 1:02cv006
	:	(Judge Spiegel)
Plaintiffs,	:
-VS-	:
	:	DECLARATION OF SHIRDENIA
PRESCOTT BIGELOW, IV, et al.,	:	BRYANT IN OPPOSITION TO
	:	DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR
Defendants.	:	SUMMARY JUDGMENT

SHIRDENIA BRYANT, after being duly cautioned and sworn, states:

1. I am one of the plaintiffs in this lawsuit. I am making this declaration in opposition to the Defendants' Consolidated Motion for Summary Judgment, filed in this case. My statements in this declaration are made on personal knowledge, and I am capable of testifying to the facts here stated.

2. On April 6 1987, my parents, Charles and Johnie Worthy, bought a home at 1107 Laidlaw, Cincinnati. The purchase price was $42,000.00. When they bought the home, they took out a mortgage loan with AmeriTrust Co for $18,000.00. The note was payable over 20 years at a fixed rate of 9.125%, creating monthly payment obligations of $163.40. Nationsbanc Mortgage later received the rights to that mortgage loan.

3. Within a six-month period from late 1995 to mid 1996, both of my parents became ill. I cared for both of my parents during their last illnesses, and I paid many of their medical expenses from my own pocket.

4. After my mother, Johnie Worthy died, I became the sole owner of the family home on Laidlaw, and I assumed the obligation to make the mortgage payments. In the first part of 1997 I was still having financial trouble from the deaths of my parents (as neither parent had life insurance), and I got behind on my mortgage payments. I did not make a mortgage payment from January to July 1997. On July 9, 1997, Nationsbank Mortgage Co. started a foreclosure lawsuit against me in Hamilton County (Case No. A9704941). The balance owed on the note at the time the suit was filed was $10,945.16. In October 1997 a judgment for money and foreclosure was entered. On December 23, 1997, my home was appraised at $66,000.00 and the sheriff's sale was set for January 29, 1998.

5. Sometime in the late summer of 1997, after the foreclosure case had been filed, a woman named Rose Christian contacted me by knocking on my door. She told me about the foreclosure case and said that she could help me keep my home. She told me that she had a friend who would buy my home, clear up the foreclosure problems, rent it to me for a year at about $200.00 per month, and then re-sell the property back to me at the end of that time. At first I said "no" to her, because I had planned on getting enough money together to pay off the mortgage company.

6. About a month or two after her first door-knocking visit, Rose Christian again appeared uninvited at my home. She seemed to be a nice lady and I was more interested in her proposal. So she arranged for me to meet with John Marfisi.

7. Rose Christian and Mr. Marfisi came to my home sometime in the fall of 1997. Marfisi proposed an arrangement that involved several steps. He told me that he would pay off the mortgage, receive title to the home, and that I would receive $20,000.00 at the closing. Second, he told me that I would then live in the home as a tenant for 12 months, paying him $200 per month in rent. With the $20,000, he said I could pay off bills, make my rent payments, and then put the rest of the money toward a down payment when I bought the house back. We did not talk about the exact buy-back price, but it was supposed to be around $20,000, plus what Marfisi would have to pay to take care of the mortgage foreclosure. He said he could get me 100% financing on the repurchase. I was interested in Marfisi's proposal and he wrote out an agreement, which he and I signed. He told me he would have an attorney draw up the papers.

8. In late January 1998, Mr. Marfisi picked me up and took me to attorney John Meckstroth's office. There I was first introduced to Defendant Prescott ("Pete") Bigelow, a man I had never met or talked to before. Mr. Bigelow announced that he – not Marfisi – would be buying my home. Up until that time, I had assumed that I would be doing business with John Marfisi.

9. Those present at Mr. Meckstroth's office on that day were Mr. Marfisi, Mr. Bigelow, and me, as well as Mr. Meckstroth. Mr. Meckstroth had prepared several papers to be signed. Mr. Meckstroth told me that I would not be receiving the $20,000 that should have been given to me at the closing. He prepared a promissory note from Mr. Bigelow to me and also told me that I would only get $1,000 on that day and the additional $19,000 in 60 days. That surprised me, because I had expected all of the $20,000 to be paid on that day, but I went along with it. Mr. Bigelow signed the promissory note for $19,000 and a lease, and I signed the deed and a lease. The lease called for me to pay him $200 per month for a year. After that, I was to buy the property back and Mr. Bigelow was to provide the 100% financing.

10. I waited the 60 days for Mr. Bigelow to pay off the promissory note, but he didn't pay. So I started making telephone calls – to Mr. Bigelow himself and to Rose Christian to find out when I was going to get my $19,000. I had real problems reaching Mr. Bigelow. I left messages, but he did not return my calls. I don't think I was ever able to talk to him. But when I called Mr. Bigelow's offices, I did speak to Rose Christian about the $19,000, as the Bigelow office was the best place to contact her. Rose Christian told me that Johnny Marfisi, not Bigelow, had the money and that I should contact him. I had Mr. Marfisi's phone number and I reached him. He promised to get some money to me. At least two times Mr. Marfisi told me he would meet me at a bank, but, when I went there, he never showed up.

11. I continued to live in the Laidlaw home, mailing the agreed-on $200 per month to Mr. Bigelow. By the end of the year 1998, I was behind about three months on the rent payments to Bigelow. Rose Christian called me to arrange a meeting with Mr. Bigelow.

12. In January 1999, I went to John Meckstroth's office to meet with Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Meckstroth. At that meeting, Bigelow told me that he was losing money on the house by only renting it for $200.00 a month and he was going to put me out on the street and get someone else in the house unless I started paying him $500.00 per month. During that meeting I asked about the $19,000 that he owed me on the promissory note. He told me he had "transferred" the promissory note to Marfisi and that it was Marfisi's responsibility to pay it. I remember that lawyer Meckstroth and Mr.

Bigelow showed me a document they said I had signed and which proved that Marfisi was responsible for paying the $19,000. That document is the same as Exhibit 85 to Mr. Bigelow's deposition in this case. The document has my signature, but I do not know how it got there. I never signed any document under a "Paid in Full" statement. I was not given a copy of the document.

13. During the same meeting, lawyer Meckstroth told me that, since the note was already transferred to Marfisi, Bigelow was not responsible for paying it. He told me that I would not be giving up anything by releasing Bigelow from his obligation to pay me the $19,000. Meckstroth then showed me a release document (the same one as Exhibit 75 to Mr. Bigelow's deposition) that he had prepared.

14. The release document that Mr. Meckstroth showed me said exactly what Mr. Meckstroth told me – that Bigelow's responsibility under the promissory note had been transferred to Marfisi. He said that I would not be giving up any thing by signing it. The release document also indicated that Mr. Bigelow would pay me $2,000 in exchange for signing the release and would forgive the $600 that I owed him for back rent. Mr. Meckstroth had also prepared a lease, requiring me to pay $500 per month to stay in the family home. Mr. Bigelow told me that, if I didn't sign the "Release" and the new lease and start paying Mr. Bigelow the $500 per month, I would be evicted. I had no choice but to sign.

15. Mr. Bigelow paid $2,000, but he reneged on his agreement to forgive the $600 in back rent, and he forced me to pay him that $600. Meckstroth prepared a new twelve-month lease agreement, which is copied as Plaintiff's Exh. 86 to Mr. Bigelow's deposition, and I signed it.

16. I recently learned about the existence of a January 1, 1999 land contract supposedly between Prescott Bigelow and me. That document is attached. The document does contain my signature, but I never signed it. I never entered into a land contract with Mr. Bigelow at all.

17. I continued to lease the home under the January 6, 1999 lease terms until the middle part of the year 2000. At that time, Mr. Bigelow told me to go to McKinley Mortgage and obtain financing to buy the house.

18. In the late spring or early summer of 2000, I went McKinley Mortgage's office at 9469 Kenwood Road and met with a man named Nathan Gieske. I filled out a loan application. Within a few days, I was told that I was approved for a $64,000.00 loan. On June 9, 2000, she went to McKinley Mortgage for the closing and again met with Nathan Gieske. Vintage Title prepared the paperwork and a representative from Vintage was at the closing. Mr. Bigelow was not there.

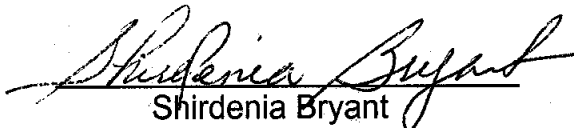

19. The June 9, 2000 settlement statement shows the $64,000 arrangement with McKinley Mortgage as a "refinancing." At that time I did not know what a "refinancing" was, so I did not say anything. On that day I signed the mortgage papers and also signed a second mortgage in favor of Mr. Bigelow for $1,600.00. Only Nate Gieske of McKinley Mortgage witnessed the second mortgage but it was not notarized. Mr. Bigelow personally received a payoff of $4,657.24 at that closing. I paid $5,099.35 in settlement charges out of my proceeds.

18. I was unable to make the mortgage payments on my home and lost it in a foreclosure. I am now homeless.

19. Before I met Mr. Bigelow, I owned my home. It was worth $65,000-$70,000, and it had a mortgage loan against it of $10,945.16. Mr. Bigelow led me to believe that, if I did the transaction with him, I would be paid $20,000 and would be able to repurchase my home (with Mr. Bigelow providing 100% financing) for the $20,000 plus the amount it took him to take care of the mortgage foreclosure. He paid me only $1,000 of the $20,000, and he later paid me a $2,000 less the $600 that I gave him back: the total amount he paid me was $2,400. I paid him a total of $13,301. I did not know it at the time, but he put a $56,000 mortgage against the home. When I bought the home back, the total loan to pay Mr. Bigelow and others was $64,000.

20. Mr. Bigelow has made a number of statements in his testimony that are untrue. First, he testified in his deposition that, at the January 27, 1998 closing, I either told him or agreed that the $19,000 promissory note proceeds should be paid to Mr. Marfisi. That is not true. I never told anyone to pay the proceeds of the promissory note to Mr. Marfisi. Second, he has testified that, at some time after the January 27 closing, he called me and asked for instructions on what to do with the $19,000. That is not true. In fact, I repeatedly called his office, trying to get him to pay the $19,000, but he never would return my call. Third, he testified that I instructed him by phone to "give" the $19,000 to Mr. Marfisi. That is untrue.
